Research has shown that good quality early education can:

- improve children's development, including learning and communication skills
- help them learn to socialise and play with new friends
- give your child the experience of playing new activities including messy play that you may not want to do at home!
- be the first steps towards getting ready for school.

Childcare is also good for families.

It gives you a bit more time to spend with other children you may have, take up a college course, volunteer, go back to work, or just have some time for yourself.

Funded early education for babies aged nine months +

From September 2024: Up to 15 hours of early education (over 38 weeks of the year) for eligible working families in England with a child from nine months old up to the term after their 2nd birthday, from the term after they turn nine months old.

From September 2025: Up to 30 hours of early education (over 38 weeks of the year) for eligible working families in England with a child from nine months old up to school age, from the term after they turn nine months old.

Some providers will allow you to ‘stretch’ the hours over 52 weeks, using fewer hours per week.

Targeted two-year-old funding

Some families of two-year-olds may be able to access up to 15 hours of early education (over 38 weeks of the year) from the term after a child's second birthday, if the household:

★ is in receipt of certain benefits, such as Universal Credit

★ has no recourse to public funds (NRPF)

Or

★ The child is looked after by the local authority, has an education, health and care (EHC) plan, gets Disability Living Allowance, has left care under an adoption order, special guardianship order or a child arrangement order.
